A Message from

Tamara Grischy

LANGTONS GENERAL MANAGER

Tonight, we celebrate a truly monumental milestone: the official release of the LANGTONS Classification of International Wine. Using the same rigorous criteria as our 8th Edition Australian Classification, 160 premier international wines now take their place alongside Australia's 21 top-tier icons to create our inaugural Global Classification list, a 181-bottle benchmark of the world's finest wines.

What better way to celebrate than doing what we do best? Live auctions are at the heart of LANGTONS, and we are thrilled to share the electric energy and excitement of in-room bidding with our most discerning collectors tonight.

To complement the bidding, enjoy a bespoke dining experience Crafted by Matt Moran. Each course has been thoughtfully paired with a curated selection of world-class producers, including Taittinger, Domaine Leflaive, Penfolds, and Ata Rangi.

Please accept my warmest thanks for your continued support of LANGTONS and for embracing this International Classification—a milestone I have passionately pursued for many years.

Enjoy the evening, taste brilliantly, and happy bidding!

About

The LANGTONS Global Classification

Established in Melbourne in 1988, LANGTONS published its first Classification of Australian Wine in 1990. Built on secondary market data, this transparent benchmark quickly became the definitive guide for serious collectors and elite producers, leading to our landmark 8th Edition in 2025.

Expanding this objective guide to international wines is the natural next step. Overseas allocations now drive significant auction volume and an even higher share of total secondary market value.

Applying the exact same criteria as our 8th Edition, the International Classification features 160 world-class wines, each earning our top “1st Classified” status. Combined with Australia’s 21 1st Classified icons, this unified Global Classification showcases 181 of the most revered fine wines for collectors.

Over the past three decades, Australian fine wine collecting has evolved. Today’s buyers and vendors operate strategically—treating wine as a resilient asset, rebalancing portfolios, or realising capital alongside traditional cellaring. Built directly on transparent auction data, the LANGTONS International Classification strips away subjective opinion to deliver true market clarity for the modern collector.
